

Case Study: The Success of Sorbati Hansda's Livestock Farming

Background

Sorbati Hansda, a dedicated member of the women's group "Jamthol Latartola Mahila Marshal Gaonta," resides in the village of Jamthol with her husband, Ruplal Hansda, and their two children, making a family of four. Their journey in livestock farming began with support from the Development Research Communication and Services Centre (DRCSC), which provided them with one sheep and one goat.

Progress and Achievements

With the initial support from DRCSC, Sorbati Hansda's livestock farming has flourished remarkably. Currently, their farm boasts 11 sheep, 6 goats, 5 chickens, and 1 duck. The market value of these small animals stands at an impressive ₹28,200.

Sales and Income

Sorbati has actively engaged in the market, selling 2 sheep and 4 goats, which fetched a total of ₹11,200. This significant income boost has been reinvested into their agricultural activities and the education of their children, ensuring a better future for the family.

Impact and Utilization of Income

The additional income generated from livestock farming has played a crucial role in enhancing their agricultural practices and supporting their children's education. The financial stability gained from this venture has not only improved their quality of life but also empowered Sorbati to contribute meaningfully to her family and community.

Conclusion

Sorbati Hansda's journey from receiving initial support to becoming a successful livestock farmer exemplifies the transformative power of targeted assistance and hard work. Her story stands as an inspiration to others in the community, highlighting the potential of livestock farming in improving livelihoods and fostering socio-economic development.
